

DANCEZING NEWS

SOLD OUT
WAITING LIST Now Open

Line Dance Weekend Break for all levels 17th to 19th February 2017

I am delighted that so many of you have signed up for the weekend break! We are now sold out and have opened a waiting list. If you would like to come along, please give me your details and I will add you to the waiting list and will contact you if any spaces become available 😊

Our next social night will be on Saturday 22nd October 😊

'Thank You' from 'Ovacome'

Here's a message from the fundraising manager from the charity 'Ovacome' regarding the funds raised from the raffle at our Summer Social Night 😊

Thank you again for your very generous donation of £116. It sounds a wonderful event and I am sure Vanda would have loved it. From watching Vanda at Tea With Ovacome I can fully appreciate she loved to dance, she was so full of energy and confidence. It is so incredibly lovely of everyone to support our work at this time. Please do pass on our gratitude to everyone involved, you are all wonderful.

*Many thanks
Best wishes
Lee*

How many line dancers does it take to change a light bulb?

5.....6.....7.....8!

Thank you to Christine Haug for the joke! ;)

Good luck Sue & See You Soon!

Sue, (aka 'the oracle' – she's well known for remembering the dance steps), is a familiar face in our club, being one of our original members and dancing with us three times a week!

It is with great sadness therefore, that I write that Sue is leaving us for pastures new. I am comforted by the fact that Sue has promised to come back to dance with us when she can and to join us at our weekend break in February!

Your 'Dancezing' family will miss you Sue but we wish you, George and Stella the dog much health, happiness (and dancing) in your new adventures! xxx

I started line dancing just after a rather large birthday in 2009, as I felt it was time to escape couch potato land at least one day a week – little did I know where it would lead!! My friend had found Nicky's class and suggested we went along to give it a try, along with a salsa solo class she ran afterwards. So on a cold Friday night in March we ventured up to Chaldon. Nicky had only just started teaching, so I was probably one of the first of her budding line dancers.

My friend gave up, but not me! That was it, I was hooked! Fridays for me was normally a book club night once a month. However the thought of missing my dancing was enough for me to convince the rest of the group that Tuesday was a MUCH better day for a book club! Later that year I came along to a Monday class for moral support for Nicky as she was just starting it. Somehow I seem now to be doing Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays! I'm sure there are worse things I could be addicted to!

I have made really good friends by dancing, definitely got fitter, and found a passion I believe will stay with me for a long time.

The sad part of all this now is that we are moving away, part of the year to the Kent coast and part of the year to France. Giving up work, and my family home of 23 years are a huge wrench, but giving up my dancing makes me have to take a deep breath just to write this! I will look for another class, but will also try to come back sometimes just to catch up with all the friends I have made and dance my favourites - hopefully if they are still on the list! And there are always the socials to come to! However giving up work will mean I can spend more time with my lovely dog (and husband of course!). I will have a chance to indulge my crochet habit, and pick up where I left off after school getting back into sewing. We are even going to buy ourselves a bike each!

So I hope this is not goodbye, but just see you all later x

Thank you to all of you for coming out to dance in all weathers – thunder storms, torrential rain and roasting temperatures of 30^o +

I appreciate your support and dedication and love that you have the same passion for line dancing as I do!

If you know of anyone who you think may enjoy line dancing, please let them know about my new beginner's class that is opening on Monday 5th September. Thank you!

Wishing you all a wonderful summer and looking forward to seeing you in September for some more fabulous dancing ☺

Keep Dancezing!

Nicky x
